

BOY IS INJURED IN THE SIEGEL-COOPER DEPT. STORE

While the State street department store managers were in their private offices yesterday figuring out how to fight the growing strength of organized female labor as evidenced in the Henrici strike, a young boy got his foot badly hurt in the moving stairway that is one of the "catch-the-nickel" attractions of Siegel-Cooper's store.

The boy was Thomas Ryan, 8 years old, of 3245 Princeton avenue. He undertook to ride upstairs on the dizzy moving stairway. Before he had gone far his foot was caught. He was thrown down and his foot was very painfully injured.

Only one newspaper—The Tribune—had the nerve to print the news of the accident this morning and that paper made a brief of it and stuck it in an obscure corner at the rear of the paper.

It also said the boy's foot was "bruised," when the records of the South Clark street station showed that the boy was hurt so badly that it was necessary to send a police ambulance to remove the boy from Siegel-Cooper's.

MRS. EMMELINE PANKHURST IS HEADED BACK TO JAIL

Glasgow, Scotland, March 10.—By a ruse, Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, untamed leader of the militant suffragets, re-arrested for the seventh time since her conviction for inspiring the bomb explosion in the home of David Lloyd-George, chancellor of the exchequer, was spirited out of Glasgow by Scotland Yard detectives and started for Holloway jail.

Warned that suffragets, armed with umbrellas, hammers, bombs and other weapons, were picketing all railway stations determined to rescue Mrs. Pankhurst if possible, the detectives took her by automobile to a way station outside the city and there put her aboard a train.

Despite the injuries she received in the riot that attended her arrest, the militant leader strongly resisted every move of the police. She refused to walk, and was forcibly carried from the local jail to the automobile that took her to the way station. The detectives had to hold her in the auto.

London, March 10.—In retaliation for the re-arrest of Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, Mary Richardson, one of the most active of the militant suffragets, today mutilated Valasquez's $200,000 painting of Venus in the National Gallery.

With a meat-chopper with a five-inch blade the woman slashed the canvas six times. Officials of the gallery, which was immediately closed to the public, said they believed the damage could be repaired. The painting was recently purchased by popular subscription.

"I tried to destroy the picture of the most beautiful woman in mythology as a protest against the government destroying Mrs. Pankhurst, the most beautiful character in modern history," Mary Richardson said, when she was arrested and taken to the police station.

WOMAN WHO PREDICTED HER DEATH IS DEAD

Grand Junction, Col., March 10.—Mrs. Clara B. Carter died yesterday, two weeks to the hour after the date she has predicted her death. A post mortem examination will be made to determine cause although physicians attribute it to starvation, a condition the woman brought on herself.

She spent her last hours making paper flowers to be used in decorating her coffin. She had her grave dug and cemented and picked out the gravestone to be placed at her grave.

Less than two months ago, Mrs. Carter was successfully-operated upon for appendicitis, but although her health improved, she became obsessed with the idea that she was going to die and could not be reasoned out of that belief.
